Food / Dining

The reason Peru has such excellent food is because of the mix of western and eastern traditions. They have excellent mouth watering dishes such as ceviche (raw fish marinated in lemon juice), pachamanca (meat and vegetables cooked underground), chupe de camarones (shrimp soup) and much, much more!

Language

Religion / Arts

Spanish is there main language, but the also speak quechua and aymara. They have many celebrations that gather many people and play music, dance, eat and have drinks.

Along with Christmas and other

Christian holidays they have a celebration called syncretism that follow there beliefs.

Places to See

There are many wonderful places to see in Peru. All the way from the top of the Andes mountains down the pacific coast. Everything here is just extraordinary. On the pacific coast you can take a ride on a boat, through the rain forest witch is a major way of transportation. On land in the desert floor there are many amazing drawings done by there people many centuries ago! Out of the hot sun of the desert you can have some fun in the water on a raft made entirely of reeds that are native

Music and Entertainment

Peruvian Juan Diego Florez is a big musical interest in Peru! He performs in amazing plays. So if you ever see a poster on the next time he's playing you should defiantly check it out, and other amazing celebrities.
